

Actionable Strategies for Inclusive Love-Fueled Learning

In this timely, trailblazing book, three teacher-educators show how to create environments that nurture young Black children's brilliance. Their "revolutionary love" approach helps early childhood educators take practical steps to counteract the negative impacts of systemic racism on children's academic, social, and emotional development.

By organizing each chapter around the "Believe-Know-Do" framework, the authors guide teachers in both the how and why of implementing ideas for their students' success and happiness.

Educator takeaways:

- ✓ Provides tools for examining our beliefs and instructional practices and create more inclusive, culturally sensitive environments for young children
- ✓ Suggests ways to reframe play to be culturally inclusive and honor the languages that children bring to the classroom
- ✓ Offers guidelines for connecting with families and the community to enhance your early childhood curriculum and make it more relevant for all students
